I feel inspired!
This year we are proud to celebrate 10 years since the inception of the Subject Leadership Programme, launched by His Royal Highness, The Prince of Wales in 2008. A major part of the PTI's work, this Programme alone now reaches over 300,000 pupils with 588 members in 314 schools, uniquely offering rich, high quality, subject-focused professional development across all subjects to improve teaching. The PTI’s message that all children, regardless of their background, should be taught by inspirational and passionate teachers was championed by our late Co-Director, Bernice McCabe OBE.

Sadly, Bernice passed away in February 2019. Bernice was instrumental in setting up and building the PTI, and her legacy will continue through our work. She was committed to providing educational opportunities for children and she believed that schools need passionate and knowledgeable teachers who can pass on their love of their subject to their students; something the PTI fully embodies. The world has lost a bright light and she will be sorely missed by her family, colleagues and friends.

The PTI will continue to be inspired by Bernice’s commitment to improving state education, providing consistent support to combat the unprecedented challenges facing the sector today. Retention of teachers is a huge problem, with large numbers of working-age teachers leaving state funded schools. The number of children enrolled in state schools is set to increase by almost 800,000 within the next decade, so we must do all we can to stem this tide.

Our courses have a positive impact on retention: in 2017/18, 86% of heads of department who had previously considered leaving the teaching profession stated that they are less likely to leave after attending our Subject Leadership Residential. In addition, 76% of newly qualified teachers stated that they are less likely to leave having attended our New Teacher Subject Days. Of these teachers, 95% were reinvigorated and more excited about teaching their subject after attending our courses, an impact which will be immediately felt by their pupils.

I would like to thank all of the individuals, companies, trusts and foundations who we work with to help us achieve our goals. Your support has improved the quality of teaching for over 389,000 children over the past year and looking ahead we are striving to expand our reach across the country. New developments include offering our New Teacher Subject Days in Manchester and Birmingham as well as providing bespoke professional development to support schools in particular areas of need. We continue to expand our work and in addition to introducing on-line courses, we are establishing an accreditation programme for subject leaders, in response to the need for curriculum building skills in schools. All this would not be possible without your support, for which we are extremely grateful.

We look forward to the coming year and extending our successful work across the country.

Improvements for good

Our aim is to improve the quality of teaching in state schools across England and Wales by improving teachers’ subject knowledge and confidence to stretch their students.

We know that:

- The quality of an education system cannot exceed the quality of its teaching, and the quality of teaching depends on teachers’ subject knowledge.
- We are 30th out of 36 OECD countries in the amount of CPD provided - just 4 days per year.
- Professional development is vital to sustain the motivation of teachers, increases their impact on pupils and is widely expected in a modern career.

1/5 of teachers who are considering leaving the profession say they would be more likely to stay if they had access to quality CPD (Teach First)

Over 65% of heads say membership of the PTI has improved the recruitment and retention of passionate teachers.

Over 86% of heads of department who had considered leaving the profession are more likely to stay after attending PTI courses.

Over 97% of these heads of department are more excited about teaching their subject.

75% of surveyed staff wanted more opportunities to participate in subject-specific CPD (Annual Teacher Omnibus Survey, NFER, 2017).
Lea Valley Primary is a two form entry school in Haringey, London, serving a diverse community. The proportion of pupils who speak English as an additional language is well above the national average. The proportion of disadvantaged pupils is significantly above the national average and the school is located in one of the highest areas of social deprivation in the country.

The school has been involved with the PTI since I attended the Primary Leadership Residential in 2016, and has been awarded the PTI Mark for two years.

The PTI has given us the opportunity to develop our subject teaching by giving our staff national networks where they can draw on the experience of so many different kinds of schools. Inspired by the PTI’s courses, our teachers bring enthusiasm straight into the classroom. The fact that the development is not centred on data, but focuses on inspirational teaching and passionate delivery, means that there is a direct, positive impact on our students.

Our PTI project, ‘The Big Read’, focusses specifically on reading in the classroom. Through it, we are improving standards and creating a lasting culture of enthusiasm and passion for reading amongst students, many of whom speak English as an additional language. This has been very successful and our Challenge Partners Quality Assurance Review confirmed that pupils across the school now have a love of reading, something we are incredibly proud of.

Before the project, we had a number of reluctant readers at school, and books would be taken home and brought back unread. Many students were struggling to decode and understand the vocabulary which was therefore limiting their understanding. Now they have discovered the joy of reading and are eager to visit the library, to talk about books and to read daily at home. This passion for reading has had a direct impact on student results, with a 6% increase in Year 6 reading results and an 8% increase for phonics. Our results are predicted to increase this year too and a pupil recently told a visitor ‘this school sets me up for the future with confidence and ambition. I know how important reading is so I can get a better job.’ Our most recent Ofsted report in 2017 picked up on this: ‘Pupils read widely, both in school and at home, and develop a real love of reading.’

In a challenging area of London, the PTI has delivered a programme that is inspirational, with hands-on, refreshing approaches that re-ignite the passion that young children benefit so much from. It has created opportunities for leaders and teachers to focus on a creative and inspirational curriculum and further children’s reading in a clear and measurable way.

Children from low-income families are:
- 9.4 months behind after primary school
- 18.4 months behind by the time they leave secondary education

Disadvantaged children gain on average:
- 1.5 years’ worth of learning with very effective teachers, compared to 0.5 years with poorly performing teachers

Child poverty is growing and affects more than 4 million children in the UK

(Institute for Fiscal Studies)

(Primary Trust of Independent Schools)

(The Sutton Trust)
In 2017/18 we reached 450 schools, 4,350 teachers, and 389,000 children.
For each and every child...

With unprecedented numbers of teachers leaving the profession and schools feeling the impact of years of budget cuts, we need your help to transform the education of the next generation of children, so that they can reach their full potential.

The PTI supports state school teachers to make lasting improvements in what and how they teach, because we know that what happens in the classroom can make the decisive difference to their lives.

With child poverty predicted to reach 5 million by 2022 our work has never been more important.

“This course has given me that recharge so badly needed after a long year which, lets face it at times, feels like pupils are not at the heart of our teaching.”

"for every £1 spent on fundraising we raise £4.69"

“The PTI made me feel even more passionate about teaching”

“The course has reigned in me the awe and wonder associated with Maths that can often get lost in the daily grind. I hope to bring some of that wonder back into the classroom”
Robert Clack School, Dagenham

Over the past 10 years we have been afforded so many benefits from our work with the PTI. Our departments have been able to thrive and flourish with the confidence to focus on the staples of exemplary subject knowledge.

As a large comprehensive school in an area which has particularly low numbers of adults with further or higher education backgrounds, we have to reach far beyond subject teaching and educate the whole student.

The cornerstones of the PTI are incredibly important within our context. They have helped our departments to grow and thrive with a renewed focus on the subject being at the centre of all we do. There is a need for us to ensure that our lessons are challenging and engaging, drawing on interesting and nuanced subject matter, thinking about the students and what they will gain from each lesson. Being able to access PTI training and support has encouraged teachers to explore, develop and share their own specialist subject knowledge with their departments and beyond.
We are incredibly grateful for the continued support of all of our donors, in particular the members of our Chairman’s Circle, Investors’ Club and Patrons listed below, as well as a number of anonymous donors. Your continued support enables us to help more teachers to become effective, enthusiastic and influential by putting subject-centered teaching at the heart of schools.
